Former Vulcan Resident Triumphs As Soprano

Of interest here is the graduation recital of Miss Kathleen Stack, L.R.S.M., soprano, who recently graduated from the Halifax conservatory. Below are excerpts from articles appearing in the Halifax papers.

LARGE AUDIENCE HEARS SOPRANO

The graduation recital of Kathleen Stack, L.R.S.M., soprano, of Calgary, Alberta, and pupil of Dr. Ernesto Vinci, of the Halifax Conservatory of Music, was held last evening at the Lord Nelson Hotel before a large audience.

Miss Stack revealed, in a program commencing with "With Verdure Clad" from Haydn's "Creation", followed by "Non So Pio Cosa Son", from "The Marriage of Figaro" by Mozart, and ranging through German, French, Spanish, Italian and English music, a voice of delicacy and clarity, which combined with an artistic and expressive temperament, made her recital very appealing.

Her artistry and the lyric flow of her voice was particularly effective in the Schumann songs, including "Der Nussbaum" and "Widmung", as well as in "Stanchen" by Strauss, and "Virgin's Slumber Song" by Reger. The clarity of her enunciation was perfect at all times, and very lovely and effective in Winter Watts' "The Little Shepherd's Song" and "The Rose Enslaves the Nightingale" by Rimsky-Korsakow. In Rachmaninoff's "Floods of Spring" she rose to a fine climax of freedom and feeling as well as in Rossini's "La Danza" which brought her an enthusiastic outburst of applause to which she responded with "The Laughing Brook" a charming song in which her delicacy and artistry had a delightful effect. Her voice was flowing and beautifully clear in "Ouvre Ton Ombrello" "Consejo" and effective in "Una Voca Poca Fa", from Rossini's "The Barber of Seville". Elsie MacAloney, B.Mus. (Dal.) played her accompaniments with brilliancy, artistry and lovely tone color.

Isabel Goodyer, pianist, and Linda Hann, violinist, assisted Miss Stack. Linda Hann played Tor Aulin's "Berceuse" with singing tone and feeling and Bach's "Loure" with artistry and appeal. Isabel Goodyer played Moszkowski's "Valse Opus 34, No. 1" with brilliancy, colorful tone and artistic feeling for the picturesque, imaginative music. Miss Hann was very effectively accompanied by Norah M. Hart, A. Mus., T.C.L.

At the intermission Miss Stack was literally buried in bouquets of flowers.—J. O'C.

MUSIC GRADUATES ARE HONORED

Mrs. H. E. Kendall, wife of the Lieutenant Governor of the Province, as guest speaker at a dinner of the Halifax Conservatory Alumni held at the Nova Scotia Hotel last evening, emphasized the influence music culture has on a community and the advantage Halifax has in rich talent.

The dinner party was given in honor of this year's three graduates of the Conservatory, Misses K. Stack and K. Archibald, voice pupils of Dr. Ernesto Vinci, and Reynold Mitchell, violinist, a student of Ifan Williams, director of the Conservatory. Mrs. Kendall spoke of the regret that was general at the departure from this city of Dr. Ernesto Vinci, who has been prominent in musical activities during the past six years he has lived in Halifax.

KIRKCALDY

Mrs. E. Brinton, of Didsbury, who has been a guest for the past week at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. Brinton, returned to her home on Thursday night.

Mr. Giles Hutt, of Spokane, Wash., is a visitor at the home of his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Anderson.

Mrs. Dahl, of Claresholm, has been visiting for the past week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Knudson.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, of Carman, were recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. Wilson.

LARGE EGG AT BRANT

Miss Jessie Welsh, of Brant, reports an extra large egg laid by a 1945 pullet that contained three eggs inside. Three complete yolks and whites were contained in the oversize shell, which measured three inches long and two inches wide. The egg was laid on Saturday, September 11th, by a 48 month old New Hampshire pullet, Miss Welsh reported. She has saved the shell in case there are any who wish to see it.

MILO NEWS

Miss Prentice of Majorville spent a few days in Calgary.

Lloyd Hughes is home on leave from Victoria, B.C.

Mrs. Dando of Calgary spent a fortnight visiting Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Peterson.

Lloyd James has received his discharge after spending two and a half years overseas.

Our congratulations go this week to Mr. and Mrs. Harvie Godkin upon the birth of a daughter at the Bassano hospital.

Miss Verna Fitzpatrick has enrolled in Mount Royal College and will study there this term, preparatory to taking training in the nursing profession.

David Buchanan has returned to Calgary and will complete his second year as a student in Mount Royal College. He is taking a first year university course.

Stoker First Class Hulder Thompson who has been stationed at Shelbourne, N.S. is home on a thirty day leave and visiting with Mr. and Mrs. William Shield.

Teddy James is expected in Calgary today after four years overseas. He will be met upon his arrival by Mr. and Mrs. George James of Victoria, formerly of Queenstown.

Corp. Harvey Gilliland is home and is visiting his parents Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gilliland. Harvey enlisted at Regina in 1941 and was overseas for two and a half years. He saw action in France, Germany and Holland.

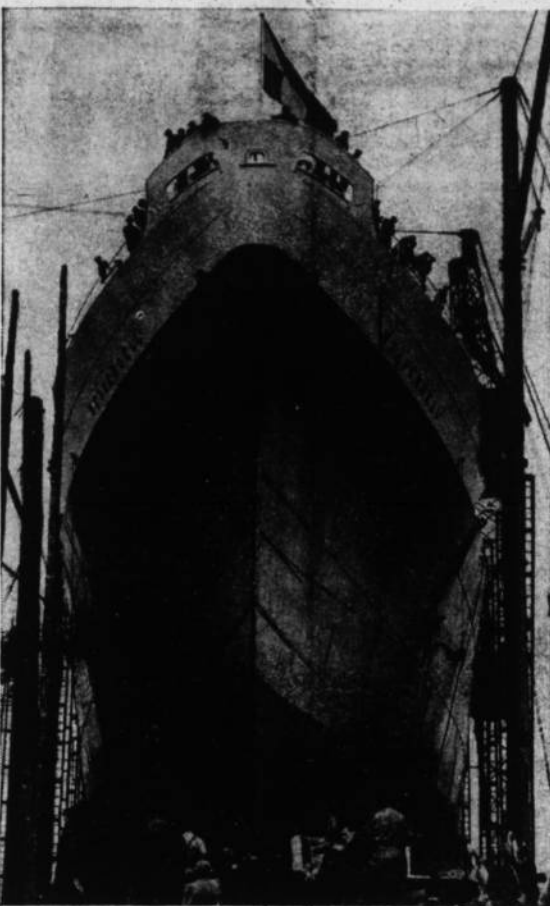

This seems to be Old Home week for the boys who are home from the services. Those at present in Calgary include Bob Umscheid, John Umscheid, Jack Heather and Jimmy Pepler.

Sgt. Daniel Arntsen recently sent his sister Mrs. Beatrice McCord a souvenir of Australia. It consists of a beautiful salt and pepper set, using bullets as the body of the utensils and an Australian penny for the base and a perforated three-penny piece for the top.

The Western Ranchers Ltd. shipped 416 fine head of cattle from this point this week destined for market. While it has been a most disappointing year for the wheat grower the hail only added to the moisture and the leases and ranches have stayed fairly green most of the summer. This is reflected in the quality of the cattle.

There's a beautiful summer resort that nestles in a valley 13 miles from Lake Louise known as Skoki Lodge. In the summer it is reached by motoring as far as Deception Pass and proceeding the rest of the way on horseback. It is an ideal place for the tourist who really desires to "leave it all behind and go and find a place that's known to God alone." At this season of the year the entire distance must be traversed on horseback. The other day one of Milo's citizens formed one of a party that were making the trip in charge of a young guide of seventeen summers. The party also included a couple of young ladies from Boston, the kind that are featured in the movies and vacation booklets. The guide saddled four horses and first of all helped the two ladies into the saddle and then turned to a well dressed old gentleman, our friend from Milo. Carefully he held the horse by the bridle, gently but firmly he hoisted his customer's posterior until he was astride. With kindly solicitude and honeyed soothing words he enquired about the length of the stirrups and adjusted them to the old gentleman's satisfaction. At last they were on their way and if the old fellow was nervous he managed to conceal it beneath a poker-faced calm. And the hero of this story is Robert Rose, one of the earliest cowboys in this district. For forty years he has ridden the range and in that time has ridden some bad ones. His feelings can be better imagined than described.

But we digress, let's get back to our cheese. On the morning in question as we sat down to our breakfast of marmalade, toast and coffee, we had a desire for something nippy and tangy, something Continued on page 5

INTERESTING LETTER FROM HOLLAND

The following is a literal translation of an interesting letter received by Mrs. Weirama from her sister, Mrs. L. Dvander Kooi, of Marsum, Friesland (North Holland) after a silence of nearly six years.

We kept our radio all through the occupation but we didn't even dare to let the children know for fear they would let it slip, and the penalty was death. We used to send the children out and lock the doors and post a guard to warn us of the approach of any Germans whenever we wished to listen. By that means however we could listen to London and get the world news and knew what lies were published in the German controlled papers.

We were never too hungry, although the black bread, our main food, was so bad that it stunk. We received a half pound of very poor butter substitute per person every two weeks when it was available. We had plenty of money but the prices on the black market were so exorbitant that only the very rich could deal in it. The children are very thin, but quite healthy. We have had no sugar or coffee for four years. The baby had never had white bread until very recently. We had no soap of any description for six months. Couldn't get any for washing, not even baby clothes. We are now getting a small quantity of English household soap, every second week.

We dread the approaching winter, because we have almost no clothes. What we have have been made over and patched so often that they are no longer much protection from the cold, and the material is just hanging together.

Fuel is very scarce and everyone is out each night stealing and searching for something to burn.

We run out to meet them every time we see Canadian soldiers. By means of signs we usually make ourselves understood. We always try to find out where they are from and give them your address. One time we found a soldier who said he was only five kilometers from Vulcan. We did not get his name.

We owe so much to the Canadian boys and would like to thank them in our humble way. Would you also convey our thanks to the wives, daughters and mothers of those boys who left behind everything dear to them and risk their lives to come over and free us from those—Germans.

The electric power is on again and supplies beginning to trickle through, so we are beginning to live once more.

WELCOME HOME DANCE AND SOCIAL EVENING

Cloverleaf Rebekah Lodge No. 37 will sponsor a Welcome Home social evening and dance, honoring all the district boys and girls who have been in uniform. This invitation especially means YOU, your friends and relatives. Everybody is welcome. Come and join in the fun. The place—the L.O.O.F. hall; the time—October 5th, at 9 p.m. sharp. Lunch will be served.

Human Touch of Salvation Army

On the Home Front the Salvation Army conducts continual service along more avenues than is realized. The Human Touch and Understanding Heart of this great Army reach many desolate people. It is to continue this work that the present Home Front campaign is in progress.

For 55 years the Salvation Army has been seeking missing persons. Last year the Men's Social Department found 355 of the 606 men sought, and 104 out of 182 women have been found. Other cases still incomplete may be successfully concluded before long.

In connection also with the Men's Social Department is the administration of industrial workshops in all large cities. These are for rehabilitation of men otherwise unemployed and have brought purpose to many lives.

During the past year the care of 1286 men from prison was entrusted to the Army. There were many others restored to home and former employment.

There are three Receiving Homes and eleven Maternity homes under the women's Social Service department. These homes care for girls who have yielded to temptation, have lost their jobs, or remanded to Army care from police courts.

The Sunset Lodges for women and Eventide homes for men take care of elderly people who otherwise might have no homes. Nine of these places are operated.

There are eighteen Salvation Army hospitals in Canada, as a chain of Grace hospitals.

There are nursing centres where children may be left and cared for and Army summer camps where city children may find healthy outdoor recreation.

These are only a few of Salvation Army services.

HIGHER LIQUOR PROFITS

Alberta's Liquor Control Board had a record profit of $5,857,202 for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1945, public accounts showed Thursday. This was an increase of $703,161 over the previous year.

Quebec has brought in legislation to encourage large families by increasing the federal bonus. The federal grant decreases after the fourth child, but Quebec government will augment these so there will be no smaller payments.

The Canadian Red Cross has arranged to send and receive one free cable between Canadian civilian internees in the far east and next of kin in Canada. These are to be sent to the Red Cross Enquiry Bureau, Ottawa, by airmail for transmission to Manila. Application is to be made to nearest Red Cross.

NATIONAL CLOTHING COLLECTION

Next week, October 1st to 7th, has been proclaimed as "Clean-Out-Your-Clothes-Closet Week" by the local committee of the National Clothing Drive, who request that all clothing you can spare be brought in as soon as possible to the local collection point in the Liberty Cafe building, the use of which has been kindly donated by R. L. Elves.

The serious purpose of the drive is to collect spare, serviceable clothing for people in Allied war devastated countries.

Earlier collection means earlier shipments and these items of clothing are eagerly awaited by millions of men, women and children who are facing the winter cold with little or inadequate clothing. So bring it in early. All that you can spare! Clean out those clothes cupboards.

A collection will be made in Vulcan on Wednesday afternoon, October 10th, but if you can bring it in earlier, do so.

Bob Symington at the Locker Plant will have the key and you can leave your spare clothes at the Liberty Cafe at any time by calling for the key.

Giving our spare clothes for the victims in Allied countries is one of the most humane tasks we have undertaken to date. Let's do it justice.

Emphasis is made that the collection is of used clothing and shoes from present wardrobes which will not need to be replaced.

Style does not matter, just as long as there is still some wear left. Articles should be clean and able to be repaired.

Already some local rural communities have taken steps to support this collection, and all others will be getting busy, with the town in the next few weeks. Look through your closets, cupboards for outgrown wearing apparel. What can you spare that they can wear?

Clothing Gifts Restore Hope

For Six Years the World Has Been Destroying. National Clothing Collection is a Step in Constructive Action

"If we fail them, we betray the ideals for which millions gave their lives," warns John D. Dower, of Edmonton, Alta., in urging full participation by the people of Canada in the forthcoming National Collection for liberated countries which takes place from October 1 to 20. His is one of dozens of reports reaching National Headquarters in Ottawa.

Mr. Dower, who is president of the Edmonton branch, Canadian Institute of International Affairs, points to the record of the second world war as a sad proof of the duty of all men of thought and goodwill. Says he: "For six years we have bent all our efforts toward destruction. It has been a grim and bitter job, but the defeat of enemies of civilization has been ample reward. Now we are being given an opportunity to work toward reconstruction. The National Clothing Collection offers to each of us the chance to give direct aid to the scores of millions left destitute by war. Destruction on a mass scale is sensational and awe-inspiring; donating old clothes is prosaic in comparison. Yet it symbolizes the quiet determined effort of men of goodwill everywhere to bring peace and healing where there has been only pain and suffering."

Of Canadians he says: "There is no question in my mind as to the success of the National Clothing. I know that every Canadian who will respond will be measured by the extent of our common humanity. The war has taught a lesson which should have burned itself into the minds of all of us. That we can no longer escape from the responsibilities imposed upon us by a shrinking globe. In Europe and Asia millions are counting on our generosity. If we fail them, we betray the ideals for which millions are counting on our generosity. If we fail them, we betray the ideals for which millions gave their lives."

Mr. Dower is president of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, former chairman of the Northern Alberta Red Cross Society campaign, and former chairman of the War Services Fund for Northern Alberta.

FIVE YEAR ASSURANCE

CANADA Wheat Board assurance that wheat will not be permitted to go below a minimum of one dollar gives farmers a basis on which they can plan their future. It will be recalled that "dollar wheat" was the cry of the thirties, the height of ambition at that time, calculated to iron out prairie problems if it could be realized.

Cost of living and of farm operation have increased to some degree so that dollar wheat does not loom up as attractively as it would have done in depression years.

But there is a general feeling of satisfaction in the solid assurance that at no time in the next five years will wheat which is bought by the Canada Wheat board go below that minimum. The farmer is guaranteed that he will not produce at a loss, and he may produce at satisfactory profit. That is, unless prices on farm equipment and other necessities get out of hand, and there is no indication that price controls will be removed for a time.

This assurance should mean a good deal to the servicemen who are going on the land. They have some security that wheat prices will not collapse for five years at least and they can plan their start with a measure of confidence. It also has its advantages to older farmers whose greatest apprehension has been demoralization of farm prices.

In the light of present export prices of $1.55 a bushel there has been some argument that the floor price should be set at $1.25. But the government may see too much risk in setting such a minimum. If the export demand should slacken in the 5-year period, as it might possibly do, the general taxpayers of Canada would be called on to make up the deficit required for the guarantee. But it is government hope that by setting a reasonable price to the purchasing nations which are now in great need, these countries may continue their purchasing. Any hold-up price would turn them to domestic wheat production as quickly as possible and mean loss of market to this country. It is hoped by asking only fair prices in their hour of need, to establish a continuing market after their productiveness has been more nearly restored. A fair price for the highest quality wheat in the world should incline them favorably to keep on buying Canadian wheat.

No specific announcement has been made as to whether the quota system would be continued in Canada if all the wheat produced in the west were required. But farm groups favor the quota system as providing a more orderly method of delivery and giving farmers more of a year-round income. Quotas have had general approval, in contrast with the "feast and famine" regime of the good old days. In those times the flood of wheat went on the market in the fall, and the year's revenue was realized, and often spent in one season.

The whole value of the new legislation authorizing $1.00 floor price for wheat is based on the prices of goods which must be bought. If these are held on a par with the farmer's main source of revenue, it should be satisfactory.

UNITE UNDER LEGION

AS Canadian servicemen return home, in increasing numbers, it is to be hoped they associate themselves with their local branch of the Canadian Legion. This is an affiliation which should be of long term benefit, under any circumstances.

It is understandable that men fresh from the rigors of war may have a good many prejudices and conflicting loyalties. They may feel very keenly the varying risks which men in uniform have made, and on that basis they may consider that they have no bond (except the uniform) with one who saw no conflict and was exposed to no danger. It is natural that they should find real comradeship amongst those who have shared experiences similar to themselves—men whose planes have been brought down in enemy territory, who have been torpedoed at sea, or who have survived the hottest land engagements. It is true that these men have a brotherhood of their own, a type of experience which cannot be shared except by those who also have been there. It should not be wondered at if they have the feeling that they belong to an aristocracy of service, far removed from the veteran who has been employed only in duty in Canada during the war.

But this type of cleavage, natural though it may be opens up no end of possibilities all of which would tend to dissipate the potential strength of combined servicemen, and undermine the vigor of a unified body. It would result in a hundred feeble voices instead of one powerful voice. The Canadian Legion took years to come into its recognized place after the last war, because returned men were split up in many little factions and groups.

If the great army of servicemen permit themselves to be swayed and split up, there is plenty of scope for troublemakers. There are the three main services, each with its own pride of accomplishment. There are the men who enlisted because they had no jobs, and those who gave up good jobs to enlist. There are men who saw service in England but no combat service. There are instructors who remained in Canada to train future fighters, often against their own will. There are men who did not volunteer for overseas service, because they felt that the whole principle in force in Canada was wrong. It is impossible to pass judgment on the nature of a man's service or sacrifice without a complete case history of the individual.

The greatest danger lies in encouraging prejudices which would in the long run work to the detriment of servicemen themselves. Allied under the broad coverage of the Canadian Legion, the veterans of the two great wars can be a powerful influence, working primarily for justice for returned men, and also working for justice for all fellow citizens. There are forces in Canada, as elsewhere, which would welcome disruptive elements in veteran strength so that the principles for which they stand could be ignored.

It is up to veterans themselves to close forces and stand together on large issues, ignoring smaller questions which tend to keep them apart.

Pertinent Topics

Discussed by H. C.

A peace-loving Japanese Prince says that if the Americans will forget Pearl Harbor the Japs will forget the atomic bomb and start anew. There could so easily have been a precedent for this if in all the annals of criminal justice there was a case where some man sentenced to death for murder had put a similar proposal to the Judge: "You forget that I committed murder and I'll forget that you sentenced me to death, and let's start anew."

It was Canadian blood that was used in transfusion to save the life of the ex-Premier Tojo of Japan from his attempted suicide. There is something good in the man after all.

That Californian who predicted the end of the world for the 21st of September did not scare many people. One little boy knew it couldn't be true because the circus was billed for his town on the 22nd. One man in Moncton, N.B. complained however, that because of the prediction his wife had stopped preserving fruit, but then she may have been only saving sugar.

It will be strange if American soldiers will stand for some of the things that happened, while they were away and are happening now. In some plants where they were employed they were promised their jobs would wait for them, and substitutes were hired on that understanding. Union leaders objected to this arrangement and threatened strike unless these temporary workers were made permanent. If the management can use both no difficulty will arise, but if not the management has no recourse in honor but to rehire their old employees and let the others go, but if it does, strikes will result.

If they are looking for jobs, there are thousands to be had now in motor plants but let them try to get them and they will find that they can not get into the plant any more than the owners or managers can. Men who want to work are debarred from entrance by men who don't want to work and no favorites are played except to clerks who issue the pay cheques. A man with several years service and with medals on his breast cannot pass the pickets to take a needed job and no doubt these jobs are included in the million that Hon. C. D. Howe sees yawning for servicemen.

Some British statesmen defined deputation as a noun of number signifying many but not signifying much. A small deputation can present a case as well as a large one if not better and when the promoters drum up a large deputation, intimidation is intended by them and suspected by the government which has good reason to resent it at this time in view of its effort to discourage civilian travel. The large deputation that descended on Ottawa to protest against lay-offs in war industries had in mind, no doubt, to get the government in wrong even if they did not get discharged workers in right.

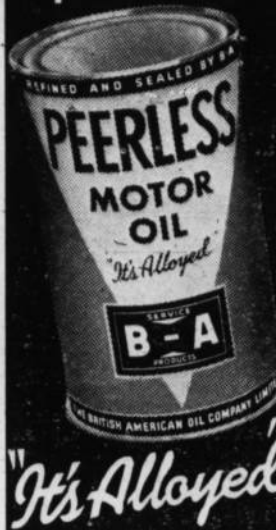

When Hon. C. D. Howe mixed up with the small deputation that assailed him at his golf club, I approved of all he said and did. (His experience as Minister of Transport enabled him to route them to the place where he told them they could go). It may not have been discreet but it was spontaneous and unrehearsed and none the worse for that. But when in a prepared statement he tells us that there are a million jobs waiting in Canada, two jobs for each applicant, one feels that he would do well to act on the spur of the moment and neglect preparation. He talks like that American who said that demobilization is going on twice, as fast as possible.

If for no other reason than that our neighbors had it, we should have had meat rationing. It gave our American friends cause to wonder why they should make sacrifices of this sort when Canada did not. It angered some and distressed other American tourists to see our shop windows blatantly displaying steaks and roasts and other choice meats, and they wondered what we had done in the war. There was no use telling them we had delayed rationing meat because there was an election coming on, but that before long we would bungle the business just as ably as they did. The furore now shows we displayed sagacity in delaying until it could do no harm politically.

Prince Konoye blames Japanese army men for starting the war. If they did they must have had the co-operation of the naval and air force and it was usually thought there was little good-will among the services. The army men have learned something and that is that an army of several million men can be licked without a shot being fired. Because the enemy was superior in air and sea power Japan's army was useless. If they really started the war they started some Government members laughed when a Social Credit M.P. advocated a pension of $100 a month to every Canadian over forty. He might have got back at them by asking "Why not, if the national debt does not matter so long as it is self-contained?" but if he had asked if they could get back at him by asking "In that case, why don't you make it $200 a month or $500?" Even funny money has its limitations and funny money men must give some thought to what the gullible will swallow.

Money May Cause Delinquency

Lt. Col. Tutte of Toronto, Canadian public relations secretary for the Salvation Army, spoke recently on social service.

"Many evils today because of more money rather than too little juvenile delinquency, so serious now, is in many cases, due to young people having more money than is good for them. Delinquency of parents, out of which so often arises delinquency by children, is frequently the result of mothers earning money and spending it in pleasure, and neglecting their children."

"In majority of cases requiring social services assistance, need of money by the individual was not the basis for trouble," said Col. Tutte. "People with plenty of money get into serious difficulties and the help of the trained and understanding social worker is the answer."

Mass treatment in social services was a failure and if governments were to assume control of every form of social service, officialism soon would kill it and the national consequences would be disastrous, said Col. Tutte. There were too many exceptions in people for classification. Thought, effort and infinite pains with the individual was the only way to redeem fallen human nature.

Senator Buchanan and Senator Gershaw have both stressed irrigation needs in the Senate.

WHAT ARE WE GOING TO PRODUCE?

By Dean R. D. Sinclair

(NOTE—This is the third of a series by this well-known authority, written expressly for the Weekly Press of the Prairie Provinces).

In any consideration of a production plan for the Prairie Provinces we immediately face the question of the relative importance of grains and livestock, and the means by which we can combine the two to best advantage. We want to utilize our different soils to best advantage, make the most useful contribution to the world's food pile, and at the same time maintain our land in good condition for future generations.

We should aim to develop our production in accordance with the natural advantages and limitations of each soil zone and probable world demands for different types of food products. With respect to the latter there are many unknown quantities at the present time. It is certain, however, that there are approximately two and one quarter billion people in the world and that a large percentage of these should be better fed than they have been in the past. World food supplies have been long on starch and short on protein. To balance the world diet more livestock, dairy, and poultry products will be required. Reports presented at the United Nations Food and Agriculture Conference indicated that practically all countries would have to increase the volume of these products if their people were to be properly fed. There is a limit to the increases that can take place in certain densely populated countries and increases that do take place will be at the expense of wheat production.

If we would seem that western farmers may look for a reasonable outlet for livestock and dairy products in the long term and that a withdrawal of lands from wheat production in certain European countries will establish an outlet for larger quantities of our wheat than were required during the immediate pre-war, "self-sufficiency" period.

In connection with wheat production, our aim should be to confine attention to this crop in the areas which have been proven capable of growing wheat of the highest quality. High protein content has always set the standard for export wheat and the reputation of Western Canadian wheat was established on this basis. The withdrawal from wheat production on lands which do not produce high-protein wheat would assist in maintaining the reputation of this product and keep the volume within the limits of export demand.

Large areas of our prairie soils are well adapted to the production of coarse grains of the best quality. We may expect that some coarse grains will move from the West to the East to assist in maintaining the livestock population on eastern farms and some will be exported to other countries for milling, brewing and other uses. As a long term policy, however, we should plan to convert the bulk of our coarse grains into livestock products on western farms. This will be particularly true the farther the location is from terminal shipping facilities. Western farms are a long way from the ultimate consumer and we must, as far as possible, ship our products in the most concentrated form. For example, 1,600 pounds of coarse grains can be moved in the form of one 450-pound bale of Wiltshire bacon.

The bulk of our undeveloped lands in Western Canada are in the wooded soil areas. These lands are well suited to the production of forage crops, particularly legumes on these soils, yield well. Such crops will, in the main, require to be marketed through livestock. We should look to a stable type of mixed farming under such conditions.

If we face up to natural conditions of soil and climate and the long land and ocean haul which the bulk of our surplus food products have to undergo before reaching the consumer, we see that our prairie agricultural economy should lean in the direction of livestock production. Emphasis on this type of farming enterprise will call for increased capital expenditure. The thought occurs that money set aside in such a form as Victory Bonds, or other war-time savings, which may be utilized over the next few years can assist in establishing livestock holdings and developing a proper mixed farming layout. A shift from wheat in areas not suited to this crop may shrink the cash returns temporarily. Savings will relieve the situation during the transition stage.

In my next article I shall discuss how we may fit into beef and dairy production.

Championship Victory Garden Helps Feed Family of 18

NEAR-PERFECT SCORE: The 200 by 50 foot plot (above), which has been adjudged the best victory garden on the Island of Montreal this year, helps feed the eight grown children and eight grand-children of Joseph Totta (right), section foreman for the Canadian Pacific Railway at Montreal West. Totta works an hour before going on duty at 7 a.m. and three hours after quitting time at 4 p.m. in growing 22 different vegetables, many of which Mrs. Totta canned or put down, as her share in supplementing the commercially grown vegetable supply needed to alleviate the food shortage in Europe. Judges for The Montreal Star contest which Totta won, called his garden "without doubt the finest vegetable garden ever entered in the competition" and gave him 28 out of a possible 30 points for quality. They looked in vain for weeds and pests and particularly remarked on his four-inch-deep cultivation, a valuable aid to moisture conservation.

to match the early frost of an autumn morning. We found the cheese and removed it from its various wrappings. No half petrified mummy taken prematurely from its cloth bindings could compare or vie with the odor of that cheese. A fragrance, reminiscent of unwashed socks, old harness, sweaty bodies and fish fertilizer permeated the atmosphere and caused the nostrils to tingle deliciously. "Ah, just the thing," we exclaimed, "just perfect."

We whittled off a respectable chunk and immediately recoiled in horror. Before our eyes lay an ug-

The Town Pump
The hamlet of Queenstown have drilled a new well to supply the populace. Good water was obtained at a depth of 73 feet. Long live the village pump. There is nothing more conducive to harmony than a group of matrons adorned in sun-bonnets and kitchen dresses gossiping in the morning sunshine while awaiting their turn at filling their buckets.

Was the Teacher Surprised.
Here is an appropriate story, just as school term commences: A little boy was in the habit of taking teacher a present. Sometimes it was an apple, sometimes some sticky candy, and sometimes something from his mother's kitchen. This day he arrived with a large brown paper sack and approaching the teacher said: "Guess what I've got for you teacher." Her observant eyes saw a wet mark on the paper and she thought it was a pound of homemade butter that, becoming melted, had begun to soften the paper. She put out a dainty finger and tasted the liquid and said: "I guess that it is butter." "o," was the reply. "Guess again." Again the teacher tasted but this time she thought she could detect a taste of vinegar. "Pickles," she said. "Naw," said Johnny in supreme disgust, "taint pickles, it's a pup."

High Wages in Montana
We were talking the other day to Dave Chambers who has just returned from combining in Montana. Winter wheat is yielding from 25 to 40 bushels per acre and the wages paid seem like a dream to the chaps from this district. Ordinary harvest help is paid $1.10 per hour and good combine men are getting from $20 to $30 per day. To our question regarding prices of commodities, Dave replied that as far as he could see, the cost of living was no higher there than here. Clothing is just as cheap, gasoline cheaper and automobiles are much lower in value. He was in an elevator in Great Falls, Mnt., and remarked to the elevator man "That he would not work in that

Welcome Help For Indians

Announcement by the department of Indian Affairs that the government planned "in the near future" to spend 12 million dollars to assist in rehabilitation of Indians was welcome news to Canadian Tuberculosis Associations, which have repeatedly urged such action. Especially welcome was the item relating to the department's intention to open more hospitals for treatment of Indians, particularly the tuberculous.

The tuberculosis death rate among Indians in 1943 was 692.3 per 100,000 as compared to 46.1 for other races in the population. It was emphasized that whereas the white death rate has declined 39% in 15 years, there has been very little change in the Indian death rate.

Alberta, with almost the lowest death rate for the white population, 19.17 has almost the highest Indian death rate, 1,011 per 100,000, or 50 times that of the white race. It is clear, however, that a sustained T.B. control program vigorously carried out, will prove effective. This is borne out by the experience of Saskatchewan, where such a program has been in effect for some years, and whose Indian death rate has declined to 622.1 per 100,000.

The health situation is equally serious in the Northwest Territories, according to Dr. Wherrett, executive secretary of the Can. T.B. Association, who last year made a survey of health conditions there. He says tuberculosis is the greatest health problem in the Territories. There is closer mingling of the white and native populations than elsewhere in Canada, and considerable anxiety is shown by white residents with children.

dust for $300 per month." Neither would I, was the prompt reply. My wages so far this month are $450 and this is only the twenty-sixth day of the month. It appears that there, even elevator men are paid overtime and in the fall of the year the job really pays.

Three Generations

Our congratulations go this week to L. H. Phillips who celebrated his 75th birthday on September 7th. Despite the fact that for many years Mr. Phillips was a sufferer from asthma; today he enjoys the best of health and is in constant attendance at his hardware store. Mr. Phillips was born in Tamworth, Ontario, in 1870 coming West as a boy of six and settling in Manitoba. In 1917 he moved to Lomond and established a hardware store there. In 1925 he came to Milo and has operated a hardware store ever since. He was married in 1896 to Cecelia Munroe of Cartwright, Manitoba. Mr. L.H. Phillips' father, David Phillips, established a hardware store in Ontario, in 1850, and Mr. Phillips' sons, Allen and Lawrence operate hardware stores at the present time in Milo and Arrowwood. In addition to this, a brother, Jack operated a hardware store at Queenstown, another brother D.N. Phillips, a hardware store at Foremost; another brother F. L., a hardware store at Valley Centre, Sask. What a record, three generations of hardware men in a country as young as ours. We wonder if the record can be equalled. If Mr. L. H. Phillips continues in his present health and is able to attend his business for another five years, he will be able to say that he and his dad have a combined business record of one hundred years in the same business.

Haunted House

(By Edna Jaques)

Remember when you were a kid and there was a haunted house on the next street?

Remember how you sort of ran past it if you were out after dark and how, even in the daytime, the windows seemed to hold shadows and you shivered just looking at it?

Well, you're grown up now and you know there are no ghosts or haunted houses. But are you SURE?

If we let the people of Europe die—for a little timely aid in the way of clothing—there will be haunted hearts in every hole and corner of Canada.

Not only that, but we'll have a haunted world, where the ghosts of these people will haunt us as long as we live.

They didn't deserve the fate that came upon them. Millions of them were gentle, kindly folk, men with humble jobs and little growing families just like us. But WAR came to their village, along the quiet roads—centuries old—where the Crusaders had marched, where country people for ages past had trudged to market, where wedding processions passed and funerals of the aged.

It was just OUR good luck that we were born on this continent. We've always been lucky that way. We have good neighbors to the south of us, strong, peaceful people who hate war as much as we do.

It could have been different. If we had Germany for a neighbor, the fate of 125 million Europeans might have been ours. Starvation, homes blown to atoms, all our clothing except that we stood up in stolen from us, our good, warm bedding sent back to Germany.

In thankfulness—for our escape—the minute you finish reading this little story, go up into your attics or into your clothes closets and dig out that unused suit. It still has good wear and warmth in it. Or that dress you loved "many pounds ago," as one woman put it.

Here are the things most urgently needed:

Suits, men's, women's and children's. Odd coats, skirts, trousers, dresses, blouses, aprons. Overcoats, men's, women's and children's. Jackets in all sizes. Scarves and shawls. Footwear (fastened together in pairs).

Under the Canadian United Allied Relief Fund on behalf of UN RA a clothing collection is being held in this Dominion from October 1st to 20th. The purpose of this is to secure serviceable used clothing for the needy and destitute people in the liberated areas of Europe and China.

Only such garments as can be spared from your wardrobe without replacement are asked for.

The wholehearted co-operation of everyone in Canada is needed to make this drive a success. Next winter will be too late—the need is NOW!

Let's not talk about peace or love or any other hope until we have met this mortal need. Deaths from exposure now outnumber deaths from starvation. Diseases makes quick inroads when a body is cold.

What Can You Spare That They Can Wear?
